WHY IT MATTERS

The gift of a real lunch break.

A few times a year, we give our teachers a duty-free lunch, and you step in to cover the room.

Teachers get time.
An uninterrupted lunch means more time to plan, and better days for our students.

You get connection.
A front-row seat to your child's world, and a lunchroom full of kids who light up when you show up.

It is easy to fit in.
Do it once, or claim a standing day. Kelly's Grandma is the Lunch Time Hero EVERY Wednesday.

YOUR REWARD

Earn your Lunch Hero badge.

Wear it proud on lunch day.

WHAT YOU'LL DO

Your lunch-hour playbook.

It is simple, and the office and lunch helpers have your back. Here is the flow, start to finish.

BEFORE THE BELL

- [ ] Arrive a few minutes early and sign in at the front office.
- [ ] Meet the class at their room and walk them to the lunchroom.

THROUGH THE LINE

- [ ] Students with lunch boxes head to the class-assigned tables.
- [ ] Stand and help your class move through the line, making sure everyone grabs what they need (drink, utensils, and so on).

DURING LUNCH

- [ ] Sit with the class for the whole lunch period.
- [ ] Keep the first stretch about eating. Gently remind them to focus, stay seated, use inside voices, and keep their area clean.
- [ ] Walk between the tables to check in, keep things orderly, and cheer them on.
- [ ] Restroom or utensil runs? Use your judgment, and try not to send more than one student to the restroom at a time.

THE HEART OF IT

You are the calm, friendly grown-up in the room. A little structure and a lot of encouragement is all it takes.

WRAPPING UP

- [ ] Walk the class over to toss trash and tidy up, then line up along the wall just outside the cafeteria. (Lunch helpers wipe the tables and sweep.)
- [ ] Send them into the restroom a few at a time, the rest line up to wait, and no playing in the bathroom.
- [ ] Head back to class together in a quiet line, and tell them what a great job they did!

That is it. One lunch, one very grateful teacher.
